

Thought & Views on Mother's Day By Dr. Sourav Singh

Mother's Day is observed in more than 40 countries around the globe on the second Sunday of May each year. The day is observed in order to pay tribute to the immense efforts of mothers in the upbringing of the child, her role in building the society and to strengthen the maternal bond.

The day came into existence largely due to the efforts of Anna Jarvis of the United States. However the deplorable fact is that she filed law suits against card & gift companies as she deeply resented its commercialization.

So, why do we or why should we (Indians) celebrate Mother's Day? Our age old customs have taught us to always respect & obey parents.. and not just remember them on a certain day. Well, the truth is that we observe the day as a result of the same rampant commercialization that Anna Jarvis deeply resented and fought.

However, I beg to differ, just as we celebrate other festivals because of their significance, let us understand the significance of Mother's Day.

In a patriarchal society like India where the man commands everything and where parents yearn for a male child, this day holds a special meaning. It is a gentle reminder of the efforts, one woman put in to make our lives meaningful and the contribution of women towards nation building. While the country continues to battle female infanticide, infant & maternal mortality, lack of equal opportunities for women, dowry killings, crime against women, male female ratio etc.. the day reminds us of a bare fact "NO MOTHER TOMORROW IF NO DAUGHTER TODAY".

It's imperative for us to remember that every girl in the society will tomorrow wield the influence which our mother had on us and it is our sacred duty to ensure health, safety & equality for women.

So let's celebrate Mother's day, the spirit of motherhood & strengthen our maternal bond but also ensure that the 'weaker sex gains in strength'.

Disability is a state of mind

Hritu Sodhi

Neha has proved this in her real life. Her sparkling eyes filled with love and affection and innocent smile caught my attention in first meeting. When I went closer, I came to know that she can't see.

Her parents Poonam and Ashutosh Sharma are my friends now.

We follow Nichiren's Buddhism and because of this we got to know each other.

Like any other mother Poonam was excited during her pregnancy. She came to know that baby is suffering from Hydrocephalus. In spite of knowing this she decided to give birth to her first child.

Hydrocephalus is a medical condition in which there is an abnormal accumulation of cerebrospinal fluid in the brain. It may cause progressive enlargement of the head if it occurs in childhood, potentially causing convulsion, tunnel vision and mental disability. It was once informally called "water in the brain."

Neha was born as a healthy child with normal head on 29th July 1996.

Her parents could not resist their emotions to see her healthy.

But soon symptoms of Hydrocephalus started showing in her. Doctors decided to operate her. 7 days old baby undergone a major surgery. A shunt was placed in her brain to drain fluid. Doctors recommended surgeries after every five years to change this shunt. Neha started her new life. Daily care cured her and in spite of her slow growth she learnt everything.

She got admission in a good school in panchkula.

At the age of 7, symptoms occurred once again. She was admitted into hospital. Hydrocephalus took her eyes. She lost vision completely. Now she can't see the colourful world but her feelings were the same. Her parents were disappointed.

Neha's life is not defined by her disability. Recovering from a major disease in childhood and again becoming a victim of same disease did not stop her from being a good human being.

Neha joined Buddhist philosophy to gain self confidence. She started attending meetings and shared her thoughts with others. In spite of all hurdles she gave exams of 10th from IGNOU.

Sometimes we feel helpless and lose hope. Mental stress has become part of life these days. Youth is committing suicide. Many are indulged in wrong activities like drugs, abuse and alcohol.

Neha's journey of life inspired me to write a story on her just to motivate astray people.

Neha came to us in last May and visited many places of Udaipur with her family. Her curiosity to know more about the culture of Rajasthan amazed me. In 42 degree temperature when we all were complaining about heat, she was enjoying each moment of her life.

I know she is an ordinary girl who has not received any major award, yet she is spreading happiness and hope among misguided and so called normal people.

Now she has shifted to America with her family. She has recently joined a school for blinds in California with a vision to work for other disabled children of her age. She chose to write poems to tell the whole world about the cheerful life of a blind girl. She writes simple and positive poems which is a sign of maturity that has been developed in her in all these years. I decided to help her and send these poems to newspapers. Her first poem was published two months back. She called me on phone to thank me and her chirping voice revealed her enthusiasm.

World does not get better by doing impossible tasks, we can change world by doing simple tasks too.

Life is small and instead of wasting life over small issues, we must create value to our lives.

Neha has taken up the task to spread happiness all over the world in her own unique way. She has a great mission on earth. I often call her A Precious Child of GOD.

She is motivating many girls of her age who give up life easily over small issues. Escaping and ending life is an easy option but this girl has gathered courage and tried to improve everyday.

GB Shaw has rightly said, "sometimes people get attached to their burdens more than the burdens are attached to them."

Neha wants to join Helen Keller's School for blind children in New York to be more independent.

Inspiration brings positive signs and strengthens our will. Limitations and obstructions can't stop anyone to create good cause for society. World peace is need of today. Ordinary people or common mortals make this world healthy to live in.

Neha's story is just not a simple story. We must take inspiration from this story to live life each day with courage and to move forward.
