Country will not bow before terrorism and extremism PM

New Delhi/Ajmer/Udaipur : Lashing out at Pakistan for glorifying terrorists, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Monday declared that the country will not bow before terrorism and extremism, even as he said people of Baluchistan and PoK have thanked him for raising the issue of atrocities against them.

In a 90-minute address to the nation from the ramparts of the Red Fort, Modi made no reference to the situation in the Kashmir Valley which has been rocked by violence after the killing of Hizbul Commander Burhan Wani, but accused Pakistan of glorifying terrorists and celebrating killings in India.

This was an obvious reference to Wani who has been hailed as a martyr by Pakistan, which was not directly named by him.

Attired in his trademark half sleeves kurta and sporting a Rajasthani turban, Modi devoted bulk of his address on the occasion of the 70th Independence Day to presenting in effect a report card of his government's work particularly in boosting economic growth, ease of doing business and welfare schemes for the poor and farmers.

Referring to terrorism, he asked the youth of the country to shun the path of violence and join the mainstream, saying they have not achieved anything by taking the path of terror and extremism.

"A game is being played to kill innocents under the garb of Maoism, and in the name of militancy and terror," the Prime Minister said.

He said that in all these years, "the motherland has become more red with blood, but those who walked the path of terrorism gained nothing." "I want to tell those youths that this country will never tolerate violence. This country will not tolerate terrorism. This country will never bow its head before terrorism, never before Maoists.
