

Dhanteras and Diwali Speical

Happy Diwali from Indian Army

Whether you credit the government or not, the army has finally and aptly changed the strategy from non-violence to befitting retaliation. Uri attack which angered the nation eventually broke the limits in all ways. But the nation was of belief that nothing can happen or India will again take a diplomatic stance and Pakistan based terrorists will continue to play with the lives of Indians. But then the news of a Surgical Strike broke. And now, since then Army has been replying to every dare coming from across the border. This is a change for good. This may not stop all the violations as terrorists are misguided badly to kill people for an insane objective but at least they and their handlers will expect a call back from Indian Army.

Editorial

Last week, some terrorists left the body of an Indian soldier mutilated which was more than enough reason to payback. Indian Army said that they will send a befitting reply and the very next day, the Army launched a retaliatory fire assault at some Pak army positions and inflicted a massive damage to at least four posts across the border.

The changed attitude of the army has put a new energy in all Indians. It obviously needed a strong government intentions to not only protect the country men from being targeted unnecessarily but also appear as a strong nation which can reply to any attack anytime. And the free hand to army is a stepping stone in this direction. Surgical Strike wrote a new chapter and from there they have nothing to look back. All what terrorist can expect a more than befitting reply for any dare they attempt on India.

All the Battalion commanders along the LOC have been given a free hand to reply properly for any violation. Army could hitherto only mourn on brutality of terrorists on their soldiers and countrymen but now they can take revenge.

Revenge means they will only reply to acts by the enemy which keeps the peaceful image of India intact. Additionally, it reiterates that the army will not keep any bullets from neighbors, it will send them back across the border with additional interest.
