

Is Living With Your Parents After Job Is Still A Good Idea?

First of all, do not take this post in a negative aspect. I know many of you will raise eyebrows on this topic, especially parents. All parents want their kid to stay with them after job or marriage. But is it a good idea? When a girl leaves her parent's house after marriage why a boy cannot leave his? Ok, let us not take an example of marriage here. Let's talk about job. A person (whether girl or boy) lives with the family while in a job, and another person leaves the house to experience the life on its own. Who do you think will be able to manage life better once parents say good bye forever? I wish all parents on this earth live for 100 years, but let's talk practical here.

Himani Khanna

I know a very ideal family where a couple lives with two sons. The couple decided to build a double floor house to ensure their kids live in the same house. Everything was good until one day. Now learn what happened. From the day when old couple was not able to carry the expenses, discussions between the sons started making the rounds. Who will do what? Their parents never discussed such things? They were also two. Eventually, sons made a boundary inside the house and responsibilities were divided. Two brothers who never ate dinner alone before now had separate kitchens. They took turns to look after the parents.

My mother says, "When you are a child with siblings you keep saying 'Mother loves me the most'. When you grow old and your mother is older, you start saying to your sibling 'She is your mother also.'" See the difference.

What needs to be understood?

Parenthood is a tree. A tree produces fruits (children). Once the fruit is ripe (maturation of children) it leaves the twig of the tree. The fruit has own duties to fulfill. One day it will have its own place in the environment and through seeding it will produce its own fruits. And so the life will continue.

I strongly believe that once the education is done and you are in a job the duty of your parents is completed. Now it is their life. When you were in teen age they motivated you to get an aim in life. Now as a mature child it is your duty to help them get their life back. They have left doing what they loved the most. Perhaps your father had interest in travelling but he travelled less to ensure his earned money gets you best education. Your mother had a career and she is a good cook, so help open her own cooking blog.

Still if they feel good being with you and can't see you separate, get the charge in your hand. Get them a cruise ticket and let them experience their second honeymoon once again.

To the parents!

You must understand the true meaning of detachment. The more you encourage them to stay together the more clash will happen which is never going to give solace to your soul. On the other hand detachment maintains the respect and dignity. Also, your child, whether girl or boy, learns to live life on own. Let them experience the life.

To the children!

There is no celebration complete without parents. If you have not tasted the Diwali special sweets of your mother's hand then you are one of those unlucky persons. Make sure you are always there with your parents when they need you the most. You are "successful, happy and capable" because they raised you by sacrificing their choices.

"A cycling expedition for a green cause"

City Duo To Pedal From Gujarat To New Delhi To Launch 'Zero Waste' Crusade; To Cover 1020 Km In 11 Days

New Delhi: A team of two cyclists and volunteers from Ahmedabad pedal a distance of 1020 km in 11 days from Gandhi Ashram in Gujarat to Gandhi Samadhi in Rajghat, New Delhi in a pledge to "Make Your Home Zero Waste". The journey for a cause in the New Year, to be undertaken by Sanjeeta Singh Negi (51) a Rajasthan Origins and Piyush Shah (57) of Gujarat extends support to Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi's Swachcha Bharat Abhiyan.

Zero waste is a philosophy that encourages the redesign of resource life cycles so that all products are reused. No trash is sent to landfills and incinerators. The process recommended is similar to the way resources are reused in nature. Every citizen of India, need to segregate their waste, by keeping two bins in the house, one for Dry waste and Kitchen waste. Give Dry waste to Rag pickers or to Kabadiwala and learn to turn your kitchen waste into manure through composting. Ms. Negi has been a green crusader and a pioneer in introducing the concept of segregation of waste at household levels. She disseminates knowledge about composting and introduced daily dump composters in Gujarat since 2014. She has also won the Green Warrior Award. She has been a marathon runner, ultra marathon runner, a mountaineer who has climbed Stok Kangri Mountain (6,153 meters 20,187 ft.) in year 2015, a trekker and a cyclist who had cycled to Nepal to Kailash Mansarovar in 2011.

Mr. Piyush Shah is a renowned marathon runner of Gujarat, he holds LIMCA BOOK Record about running on Tread Mill, 181km in 29 hours in year 2013. He is India ambassador for GARMIN Sports agency in 2011, he ran 21kms for 100 days, in Year 2015, he ran 100 full marathon for 100 days which is a record. Recently on 24th Dec 2017, he ran 171 km in 37 hrs from Ahmedabad to Ambaji. Mr Piyush is also dedicated to the Swachh Bharat Abhiyan. "Our landfills are getting bigger and waste generation is increasing by the day. This is the story of every village, town and city of India. The problem is big but together we can solve it. We are not talking about what big companies do and how they pollute our resources. We are only talking about how an individual or a house can take care of the waste that may range between half a kilo to 20 kg," said Ms. Negi on the initiative.

Women of Gujarat have already taken a step; they are coming forward and learning composting. Their response has encourage us to make more people aware about how to make house ZERO WASTE. The duo have made a stop at every 100 km where a detailed presentation was given on "Change the way you throw your waste" in a school, college, women's clubs like Inner Wheel, Rotary Club or at Lions club. In New Delhi, Pernod Ricard India had organize a in house program to change name of Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) to Sustainability and Responsibility (S and R), on this occasion, Pernod Ricard India, recognized efforts of Ms sanjeeta singh Negi and Mr piyush shah on "How to Make your House ZERO WASTE and facilitate their work. On 11th Jan duo cyclist did their last lap of cycling from Gurgaon to Rajghat New Delhi and finished their tour. Plastics, paper, bottles, glass metal and electronic items can be recycled and normally kitchen waste is biodegradable. However, mixing of waste raises the problem. The urgent need is therefore, to segregate waste. After all, 95% of waste from home is not a waste. Rather the waste generated is a means of living for scrap dealers and rag pickers.

IIM(U) undertook a teaching initiative

Udaipur: Prayatna the social responsibility club of Indian Institute of Management Udaipur undertook a teaching initiative. As a part of this the students from the B-school tutored the students belonging to classes IX and X at Jeevan Jyoti Child Home, located in the Sukhera area of Udaipur. The event witnessed students from the first and second years of PGP turning up in good numbers and mentoring the kids.

The students of IIM said that they moved by the way children received them. "The main objective of this program was to sensitize the future managers of the learning difficulties faced by under-privileged student", said a member from the club.

"As the institute continues its journey at its new campus in Balicha, Prayatna plans to associate with many such child care homes", says Ashwin, a senior member.

A total of 16 volunteers from the IIM had visited the school on eight days. They have put in 256 man-hours of time teaching subjects like Mathematics, English, Social Studies and other academic subjects which the school students were facing a problem with.

The institute is also looking forward to make more impact to the society around it by promoting education and environmental consciousness. The club believes in sensitizing the student community of the issues in the society and the way they as an institute can give back to the betterment of needs.

Our vision to transform the country into a digitally empowered society P.P. Chaudhary

New Delhi: Union Minister of State, Ministry of Law and Justice and Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology, P.P. Chaudhary has unveiled Mphasis 'My Stamp', to commemorate Mphasis' Silver Jubilee at an event held at the General Post Office in Bengaluru. He also interacted with the general public during the programmes organised by Pravasi Rajasthani Sangh in various parts of Bengaluru and exhorted them to use digital payments as a means to not only ease the payment process but also to reduce corruption. He also motivated the audience to use IT-enabled service platforms to avail the services being offered by the Government at all levels.

"It is our vision to transform the country into a digitally empowered society and the government has taken a number of measures to spur this vision. Organizations like Mphasis have played a significant role in putting our country as the Information Technology powerhouse of the world," said Shri Chaudhary during the unveiling ceremony.

Chaudhary there after interacted with the IT industry on the National Policy on Software Products during the Industry Meet organized by Software Technology Parks of India (STPI), Bengaluru and sought their feedback on the draft policy. During his address to the industry later, he said, "I feel this policy has the potential to synergize the efforts of the government and the industry to create a robust software product industry."

He also held a meeting with the senior executives of top IT companies of Bengaluru to understand the issues which may have an impact on the growth of IT industry in India. The industry representatives appreciated the umbrella of services being provided by STPI to the IT industry not only to the established units but also to the start ups. However, they expressed their concern on the disparity of the incentives available under STPI scheme vis-à-vis the Special Economic Zones (SEZ) policy and requested the Minister of State to take necessary steps. Shri Chaudhary held a review of the progress of Information Technology Investment Region (ITIR) being set up in Bengaluru for which the DPR has already been approved by the Government of India. "Government of India would extend all possible support to the state government of Karnataka for developing the proposed ITIR," Shri P.P. Chaudhary said after the review.

He also undertook a review of the activities of STPI, Bengaluru, which alone contributes to about 40% of the industry's exports from India. During the review, Minister directed STPI to hold consultations with all industry stakeholders, at least on a quarterly basis, to address their concerns so that the country continues to be the dominant player in the IT/ITeS industry space. He also undertook review of the activities of the Karnataka branch of National Informatics Centre (NIC), ERNET and STQC and appreciated the work being done by these organizations. Director, STPI, Bengaluru also informed of the efforts being made by STPI, Bengaluru towards promoting digital literacy and digital payments and as a part of the awareness creation on Cashless Economy and Digital Payments, so far 81 workshops have been conducted by them for 5,000 beneficiaries covering IT units and general public in Karnataka. Shri P. P. Chaudhary appreciated their efforts and directed all other organizations to also conduct workshops to promote use of digital payment. Shri Chaudhary also visited Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru to address the participants of the workshop on Women in Science and Engineering, 2017 being organised by IEEE (Nanotechnology Council) at the Centre for Nanoscience and Engineering (CeNSE) of IISc, Bengaluru. While addressing the participants, Shri Chaudhary said, "Smart nation would comprise of smart people and smart people come from a quality education system. The scientists should make all efforts to improve the quality of education in the country, especially in rural areas, and devise technologies to cater to this requirement."
