Provide Subsidy for Rain water Harvesting

Udaipur: In last few days ago the state government issued an advertisement that it will provide 30 % subsidy for those who install solar plants for production of electricity on their roofs. definitely this will mitigate the availability of electricity in the state. The state government should also provide such subsidy for those installing Roof Top Rain Water harvesting on their buildings as this act will also increase the falling underground water level in the state & enhance the availability of the water & improve the quality of water to this water starved state.

Announcement during this monsoon will motivate many to save this rain water. Delhi Government is already giving 50 % subsidy for this purpose since last ten years. The same can be distributed through local self bodies in the state. other wise the RAIN water will go to DRAIN as it is going every year.

Road safety week @ Alok

NDA Govt's decision to implement GST taken in haste: Rahul

Banswara: Congress vice-president Rahul Gandhi today hit out at the NDA Government alleging that it was not willing to discuss farmers' issues in Parliament and that its decision to implement the GST was taken in a haste. Wielding a bow and arrow at 'Kisaan Aakrosh Rally' here he slammed the BJP and the RSS alleging that they do not hear the voices of the weak and the oppressed people. He said the Congress wanted to discuss the issues of farmers at length in the Lok Sabha today but were not allowed to speak.

"The government can announce GST implementation at midnight but is not willing to discuss issues of farmers in Parliament for a minute," Gandhi alleged.

About implementation of the new indirect tax regime in the country, he said the decision was taken in haste.

"We wanted the government to take three-four more months as the proposed GST reforms had deficiencies and would impact small traders," Gandhi said. He said small traders, farmers, labourers, tribals and Dalits equally runs the country but the people in the BJP and the RSS do not hear the voices of the oppressed and the weak. Gandhi said the Congress believes that farmers, traders, labourers play equally important role along side industrialist in taking the country forward.

"We want to take everybody along and take the country forward. India has made its mark due to its farmers, labourers and traders who have given their blood and sweat to it," he said.

Accusing the BJP government of neglecting farmers, labourers, youths and small traders the Congress vice-president said the benefits are reaching only to the top 50 industrialists of the country.

He said the Congress will fight for the farmers and put pressure on the BJP government to waive farm loans in Rajasthan.

"It was under pressure from the Congress, that the BJP government waived loans of farmers in Uttar Pradesh. In Punjab and Karnataka, Congress governments did not take time in providing relief measures to farmers by waiving their loans," Gandhi said.

"We will not let the Rajasthan government sleep till the loans of farmers are waived," he said. Taking a jibe at the Modi government over its promise of providing employment to 2 crore youths, Gandhi said, "He had promised jobs through 'Make In India' campaign, but all claims have turned flat."

Seminar on "Literary Update"

Udaipur: Rajasthan Sahitya Akademi organized a seminar on "Updates of Literature" on Thursday at Rajasthan Sahitya Akademi Office Auditorium. The chief guest of the event, Vice Chancellor of Mohanlal Sukhadia University Prof. J.P. Sharma said on this occasion that literary is very sensitive and keeps all the senses of the society on social sheet. Society activates itself with the activist's activism. If the litterateur is inactive then there is stagnation in society.

While introducing the subject in the beginning, Akademi President Indushekhar 'Tappurush' said that literature extends human sensitivity, beauty, refines consciousness and renders the language. Literature combines the complexity of language into simplicity and meaning together. It is only in the composition of the writer that it is called a big creation even on a small subject.

As a subject expert Prof. K. K. Sharma said that literature is not a mirror of society, but it is a medium to tell something more than that. Literature gives detail to sensations. Today, the coverage of 'update' is also in the past and is also dynamic in the future. Dr. Madhav Hada, Hindi Department of MLSU said that IN compersion ours time to society of today is a big odd one. Today's society is living together several centuries. In the literature the society is depicted in a different way and in reality it is different. The first word was the power of literature and the scene was also included in the word, but the scene is already present today. There are many types of disciplines and challenges in front of the literature today.

Hariyali Amavasya @ lakecity

In Hindi, the word 'Amavasya' refers to a no-moon day and 'Hariyali' refers to greenery. Hariyali Amavasya is thus a festival which is celebrated on a no-moon day to welcome the month of monsoon. It is celebrated on the first Amavasya of Saavan which is the period of July-August as per the Hindu calendar. It is celebrated by people in Northern India especially in the states of Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan and Himachal Pradesh. The day corresponds with Ashada Amawas and Chaluha Amawas in different states.

Hariyali Amavasya Celebrations On this auspicious day, people worship Lord Shiva. Their prayers are directed toward hoping for a fruitful monsoon season which will yield good agricultural produce. Shiva temples across the country arrange a special day for Shiva Darshan. In Mathura, devotees of Lord Krishna visit the Dwarkadish temple and offer prayers. In Vrindavan, people visit Banke Bihari temple to do the same. Here, the Phool Bangal Utsav ends on the day of Hariyali Amavasya. A mass 'puja' is organised in Jaipur too. Hariyali Amavasya - Fairs In Udaipur, the celebration includes setting up of a fair. This fair goes on for three days. Stalls of food, games, rides, clothes and jewellery are set up. The famous dish of Rabri Malpua is available in plentiful. Energetic vendors voice themselves out loud. The fair witnesses an atmosphere of fun and frolic. The fair attract people, young and all, not only from the town in which it is set up, but also tourists from all across the country like to visit it. This results in developing a platform of national integration. Historically, it is believed that Maharana Fateh Singh, the architect of the famous Fatehpur Sagar was, was the first to set up the fair. He observed that a lot of water of the Dewali pond was being wasted and hence converted it into a reservoir which was used to fulfil people's needs. On its completion, a fair was set up on the moonless night of the rainy season which began being celebrated as the Hariyali Amawas. Eventually, the fair was set up by the then ruling kings for the common people. What is amazing is that the tradition continues till date. The fair speeded out from Saheliyonki Baari to Fatehsagar. Apart from the hundreds of stalls, the fair is adorned with beautiful and colorful costumes, traditional music and dance. The marvelous combinations of these provide entertainment to everyone and they absolutely enjoy themselves. Even though both men and women are a part of this fair, on Monday of the fair is usually reserved for women. On this day, the men are not allowed to enter the fair. All the women pray for the prosperity of their families with all their heart. The Collector of Udaipur declares this as a holiday for schools and government offices. Not only this, schools and clubs also have cultural programs to commemorate this day. Ceremonies of tree plantation are held across places. A visit to this fair is a must-awaited affair.
