Making Environment Possible

Diwali shopping sans firecrackers was noticeable in Delhi NCR. Talking to others, people ridiculed the idea of banning crackers on Diwali but deep inside they knew that it was required to keep the life going. But this step was only the start and it could well be the end as normally happens. Unless this start is capitalized into a bigger action plan, the sacrifice by the residents of Delhi-NCR region will be lost into oblivion.

The government has already closed some highly polluting thermal powers and has taken a few steps to curb the pollution. But of course much more and impactful steps are needed.

In India, people are accustomed to following leaders. Speeches by leaders are powerful enough to drive a crowd. And an action from a leader also inspires others. This way a leader can actually lead with an example.

Editorial

If a member of parliament starts taking a bus to office or place or a member of legislative assembly takes a bus to visit their constituency can pave the way for the rest. Planting a tree can be another great way to add to one's routine of the day. A leader or the head of any office can plant a sapling regularly and then ensure that it becomes a tree.

The government has also increased the parking fee for some places but then one needs to understand that a big chunk of cars are parked at illegal places where people do not pay any fees at all. First parking at any spot needs to be regularized and a strong eye on movement needs to be kept. Then, we need a strong mechanism where parking officials do not let people park without any formal receipt.

A general perception spread by the media is that people do not cooperate. But then what options people have is a big question. To keep the city clean, they do not find dustbins at places. Similarly, there are fewer options to keep the city pollution free. The public transport system is there in place but what about the last mile connectivity? People would love to use metro instead of a smoke emitting diesel car but they do not find a way to reach the nearest metro station. Some think of using their car till the metro station but once they start by car, they hardly think of metro.

Missing parking discipline, last mile connectivity, and apathy of leaders towards public transport are some totally missed and huge gaps that fail all the bigger measures like the ban of firecrackers or rationing of cars based on their registration numbers.

Be it corruption or pollution, the problems need an end-to-end and comprehensive solution. Just plans that appear good on paper might earn a lot of appreciation but they fail miserably in the absence of small but connecting pinions.

Could not undergo USG without Adhar

The woman could not undergo an ultra sonography (USG) as she could not furnish her Aadhaar card.

The linking of Aadhaar to seek abortion services poses risk of life to the life of a woman, doctors at Post Graduate Institute of Medical Education and Research (PGIMER) at Chandigarh have stated. According to the latest paper published in British Medical Journal (BMJ), a 28-year-old housemaid was forced to seek services from an unqualified quack after being turned away by the government hospital at Chandigarh, because she did not have an Aadhaar card. After having not menstruated for two-and-a-half months, she realised she was pregnant and visited a government dispensary.

Diwali Bonanza : For over 12 lakh government employees

Jaipur: The Chief Minister Vasundhara Raje on Tuesday presented the state government employees with a Dhanteras/Diwali Bonanza. For over 12 lakh government employees, it would be a brighter Diwali too as Raje approved recommendations of the 7th Pay Commission which were submitted by The DC Samant Committee. The employees will get the hiked salary of October in November. However, no official declaration has been made by the government about the date when it comes into effect - a bone of contention between the government and the agitating employees unions. There isn't a word about the arrears. For a long time, the government employees were demanding the implementation of the 7th pay commission. The Samant committee had submitted its recommendations on September 25, even though a cabinet meeting chaired by Raje failed to take the decision, pushing the panel recommendations into the realm of uncertainty. In a sudden development, immediately after returning from Ajmer, Raje held a closed door meeting at her residence with finance officials on Tuesday evening and endorsed it.

"I had promised in the state budget 2017-18 to implement the recommendations of 7th pay commission. I am happy it is being implemented from October. The Samant committee is authorized to look into pay anomalies, allowances, arrears and step-up issue," said a statement quoting Raje.

She also said that employees are backbone of her government and it is very sensitive to their welfare and interests. The Samant committee had recommended reportedly 14 per cent hike in the salary. According to the sources, the state government will have to spend around Rs 10,500 crore in salaries and allowances with the implementation of recommendations. Nearly 8.57 lakh in-service employees and 3.5 lakh pensioners will get the hiked versions in November. The government declaration on 7th pay commission, however, is silent over arrears which has created uneasiness among the employees' unions. The unions wanted the salary hike to be implemented from January 2016. Also, there is no mention of minimum salary of government employees with the effect of the recommendations. Tej Singh Rathore, general secretary of Akhil Rajasthan Rajya Karmchari Sanyukt Mahasangh, called the announcement incomplete with many ambiguities. "There is no clarity on the implementation date and also on the arrears. Also, no announcement has been made on pay anomalies and allowances for which we were agitating for a long time," he said.
