Together with me

Stop judging relationships!

Come on guys! Its really true! We judge without even thinking twice.

I really don't understand this human tendency. Why people judge others without understanding their relationships?

One day my friend Shuchita came to pick me from home. My neighbour Varma aunty immediately called my mom to inquire about Shuchita. My mother told her the truth that we are classmates. Mrs. Varma tried to convince my mom that its not good to believe on youngsters at this age. She hardly knows anything about me. I have studied in a reputed school in which we were being taught in a different way. I belong to Chandigarh which is India's first well planned city. You may judge the residents of Chandigarh by their style statement only but they are well behaved, cultured and educated people. We don't get much time to think about others in big cities. I have been born and brought up in a classy environment. We never interfere in others life without their permission. I really feel astonished to see the poor mentality of some people. I have not learnt to see Shuchita as an alien. She is just another human being for me. I can't judge anyone whom I never get a chance to interact with.

Many parents feel that youngsters disobey them.

Do they ever have tried to find the main cause?

Its not that we have build up the thick wall of silence around us. I would love to discuss about my first crush with my mom.

She has given me the courage to introduce my female friends to her without any hesitation. I can't lie to my mom when I come late from college.

Its not easy to break the habit of judging others in a day. Mostly people judge females by their clothes. Shorts and skirts attract males so much that they forget their culture and start commenting on females characters. Bare legs may be look odd to you but it does not give you permission to stare.

I am a boy and I have never talked rubbish about any girl. Girls trust those boys who give them respect in any condition. A girl may be shy or bold but a boy must never cross his limits. If you can drink or smoke without any shame, she has the right to live life on her own way.

From now onwards stop judging others together with me. Its not about learning the art of living, its about giving others the right to breathe in the fresh air of independence.

Shakespeare's The Merchant of Venice Comes live at M.L.V. Government College, Bhilwara

Love and Compassion Win, Hatred and Revenge always Lose

Dr. H.S.Chandalia

Bhilwara. The audience remained spell bound as the students of M.L.V. Government PG College, Bhilwara staged the famous play of Sixteenth Century British dramatist William Shakespeare The Merchant of Venice. The hall of the college was full and hundreds of students waited outside the hall for the second consecutive performance while the play was being performed. All the students performed very well and the play made the renaissance atmosphere live as the students came on the stage in the dresses of the renaissance society. The dialogues were aptly delivered and none of the eighteen actors ever forgot a single dialogue. To make the students from rural background speak English fluently and memorize the dialogues of a performance running for more than an hour and a half required immense hard work and dedication. This was done by the department of English, particularly Dr. Anant Dadhich who left no stone unturned to make the performance a success. Despite his deputation to another college some one hundred kilometers away, he kept on coming to the college and labored day and night to make it a good presentation.

Director of the play Dr. Anant Dadhich told that The Merchant of Venice is a play which is very relevant even after four hundred years. Today also the racial and communal hatred is shaking the world and threatening mankind of another apocalypse. Chief Guest of the programme Prof. Hemendra Chandalia, Professor of English at JRN Rajasthan Vidyapeeth inaugurated the function and addressed the audience. He said that communal and racial hatred is spreading far and wide in the country today. In such a situation the performance of the play The Merchant of Venice will develop a new understanding and harmony in the world. He said that the commercial interest needs to be defeated by humane understanding of facts. Principal of the college Mr. B.L.Malviya gave mementos to the students who acted in the play.

Kamal Saraswat performed Shylock, Ajay Singh Rawat Bassanio, Sanjay Saraswat played Antonio, Garima Pancholi played Portia, Sangeeta Rajpurohit played Nerissa, Juber Ahmad played the Duke. Parmesh Mali, Dushyant Harit Vyas, Ranjit Singh, Mahaveer Sen, Hemraj Kataria, Omprakash Yogi, Sunil Nath, Yadu Gautam, Deepika Sharma and Zamila Banu played other important characters of the play. Cultural Coordinator Dr. Payod Joshi told that the play was performed after rehearsal and preparation for nearly three months. Dr. Ashwini Kumar Joshi compered the programme. Dr. Avinash Sharma took care of the sound, Dr. Manoj Lakhani Light, Dr. Manish Ranjan costume, and Dr. Shailendra Jain and Kamod Meena took care of general administration.

Dr. Anant Dadhich had directed another play Macbeth two years back. Prof. H.S.Chandalia, Dr. Pramila Singhvi, Prof. Mukta Sharma and Dr. Mehreen Sadriwala felicitated Dr. Anant Dadhich for his outstanding direction and painstakingly organizing the event. Dr. L.S.Rathore, HOD English welcomed the guests. The outstanding performance of the entire team was appreciated by all the people present including teachers.
