A New Kind of Politics

Delhi's Chief Minister recently issued apologies to the people whom he had defamed by leveling severe corruption charges sometime back. From his own team members to party workers to general public, this stand was unacceptable and shocking. Social media was abuzz with trolls on his apologies like it was when he sat on Dharnas. Undeterred with what people now think about Arvind Kejriwal, he got back to his routine work Media sensationalized this news and ensured he was there on headlines for a few days. His credibility was questioned and so on. And as usual, the report got subsided. People are back to work and waiting for another sensational story to enjoy.

The reason behind his unconditional apology, as cited by his party, was to get rid of rounds of courts located in various cities of the county. This is being seen as a politics, backtracking, and lot more.

The fact remains simple. After a few years, if he wins these cases, no one will listen to him. Justice is so tricky we all know. And for that he would have lost the hold of Delhi as no matter how much work is done, people will allege him for being absent from work. Now, will he and his government work faster or better in his increased presence, cannot be commented. This is something only people of Delhi can decide. But the way Arvind Kejriwal has challenged set patterns of politics by apologizing is commendable indeed.

In the history of Indian politics, many politicians have reached behind the bar for their corruption and other crimes. Having been convicted by the honorable courts, they still did not issue an apology to their voters whom they betrayed. Kejriwal apologized earlier when he had resigned and left Delhi for national politics. People not only forgave him, they also reinstated him as a CM of Delhi with a clean sweep victory. Once again he has apologized so that his cases can be settled out of court. Apart from believing his idea of an apology, there are not many theories that can prove his ill will. Of course, he also represents the plight of an ordinary man who has to do rounds in cases of the court from one city to the other many a times in a year. If a CM gave up, you can think what an ordinary man would do.

The good thing about today's informed public is that they hear everyone but make a decision based on their judgment. They do not need any channel's opinion to decide which party to vote. Also, people are turning into vigilant voters rather than being blind-fold supporter.

Whatever be the reason, Arvind Kejriwal has once again risked his political position by apologizing. If he is able to prove that he worked more than earlier, its okay, else he will find it difficult to return to power next time. This one session of five years which is the result of a total turnaround of orthodox is the most significant test. You perform and become permanent; you fail to keep promises, you perish.

People will only judge you based on the work you did in last five years. The public is eloquent and very clear about it.

The team was awarded to Rashtrapati Bhawan in presence of President of India. The award was given by Dr. Harsh Vardhan, Ministry of Science & Technology (India). The team was awarded for their innovation - Eco-Friendly Water Retention Natural Polymer. This innovation has been done using waste products. One of the biggest challenges with farmers is to ensure that water can be used for as long as possible. This innovation will help the farmers in their endeavor. Because this product is made from waste products, its cost is a lot lower than chemical polymers currently available in the market and hence more affordable for farmers. The team of Narayan Lal Gurjar is the only team selected from Rajasthan for this award this year. They were also the youngest team that was awarded this year. The Gandhian Technology award is given only to those innovators whose inventions have a positive impact on society and those that can be linked to
