

15 Days Old Saved From Rare Cardiac Defect

The baby made remarkable recovery and eventually was shifted to her mother's bedside

Udaipur: Interventional Cardiologist team at Geetanjali Medical College & Hospital including DrKapilBhargava, Dr. Ramesh Patel, Dr. Danny Kumar & Dr. ShalabhAgarwal successfully performed a complex and complicated procedure called as "PDA Stenting" on 15 days old Baby of Ramjahan hailing from Udaipur who was suffering from Tetralogy of Fallot with Pulmonary Atresia. It has been claimed as the first hospital in all of Rajasthan to have successfully performed such a complicated procedure.

Ramijaha had delivered her baby in a nearby hospital where in the baby started turning blue. Upon suspicion of heart defect in her baby she was rushed to Geetanjali Hospital for further evaluations of X-Ray & Echocardiography to detect heart problems in her child.

The report confirmed a cardiac defect called "Tetralogy of Fallot with Pulmonary Atresia" wherein the structures of the left side of the heart were under-developed. There was a hole in heart & one of the heart valves was not developed. Dr Ramesh Patel, the Interventional Cardiologist said, "It was noticed that due to a major cardiac heart defect, the baby required immediate medical assistance. The baby would also need immediate surgery to prevent damage to all other organs. Both the parents were counseled about the child's condition and the need of two or more surgeries later in life to separate the blue and pink blood circulations. A medication drip was started to prevent closure of one of the arteries (PDA) responsible for keeping the baby alive. After a detailed evaluation and discussion by the entire team and in view of concerns of low birth weight, it was decided to perform a complex procedure on the new born called as "PDA Stenting." It was baby's low birth weight & such critical condition that she was not taken for surgery otherwise she couldn't have survived."

Dr Patel further added "The procedure was performed in the Cath-lab. A balloon procedure was performed to enlarge the hole in the partition between two upper chambers of the heart. Next, the chest wall was opened, and bands were placed on both the lung arteries to restrict the amount of blood flowing into the lungs. After that, a tube was placed in the main lung artery through which a metallic stent was passed and inflated in the artery (PDA) connecting the two circulations. The chest wall was kept open in view of the high-risk nature of the surgery with the plan to close it once the baby was stable. The baby made remarkable recovery and eventually was shifted to her mother's bed side. Soon she will be taken up for surgery for complete

It is probably the first hospital in Rajasthan to have successfully performed such a complicated procedure. What is unique in this case is that the child was managed where in survival rate is less than 0.1% & the defect is seen in anyone out of 3-4 lakhs patients. This makes GMCH an ideal healthcare setup for diagnosing and managing such complex cardiac defects. The baby girl was treated free under the flagship scheme of Rajasthan Government's Bhamashah Swasthya Bima Yojana.

Conversation on "Stardom in Indian Politics"

New Delhi: "Shastrartha", ShatrughanSinha in conversation with Raj Babbar on "Stardom in Indian Politics", a discussion hosted by Pavan K Varma, Manish Pushkale & Nita Khanna was held at the TajMahal hotel, New Delhi. The discussion was moderated by RasheedKidwai, Author of NetaAbhineta, Bollywood star power in Indian politics.

Shastrartha is civilized dialogue where eminent personalities are invited for panel discussions. It is a ability to agree, to disagree; the culture of listening with respect to vene those with whom you differ. This form of discourse has been one of our great civilization legacy. But today, the space for dialogue is shrinking alarmingly. we no longer talk to each other, but at each other. Shastrartha is a small but earnest beginning to change this and revive what has always been our strength.

The star studded evening was attended by AmanNath, Manish Pushkale, Bhaichand Patel, PramodKapoor, Pavan K Varma, Renuka Varma, Kamna Pushkale.

Colgate Strong Teeth launches 'Andar se Strong', a campaign

Hyderabad: Colgate-Palmolive (India) Limited, has launched 'Andar se Strong', a new campaign for its flagship brand Colgate Strong Teeth by revealing two new TVCs and a packaging change, after over a decade.

Both the TVCs convey how Colgate Strong Teeth adds natural calcium to one's teeth, and are based on the theme that just like a mother raises her child to be strong from within, Colgate Strong Teeth too makes one's teeth strong from within.

The first TVC shows the protagonist - a young girl - joining in to play football with a group of boys, overriding the resistance to her inclusion in the team with her confident smile and wit - a reflection of self-belief and inner strength. The second TVC features DeepikaPadukone, shown alongside her mother - who has made the actress strong from within. Smiling during difficult moments, she says, symbolizes 'inner strength'.

Speaking about the new Colgate campaign, Mr.IssamBachalani, Managing Director, Colgate-Palmolive (India) Limited said, "Colgate Strong Teeth, our flagship brand, has been in India for over 80 years, and I'm delighted to announce our new brand campaign called 'Andar Se Strong' featuring Bollywood actress DeepikaPadukone. This campaign reinforces our promise to guard and nurture you and your family's smile, by keeping your teeth strong from within."

Speaking about the campaign, Sanjay Sipahimalani, Creative Director, RedFuse Communication says, "In this campaign, we wanted to highlight that inner strength is most important to experience life to the fullest. Both the TVCs focus on 'Andar se Strong' stories, but manifest in different ways. While the football tvc shows how breaking stereotypes and standing up for yourself takes inner strength, Deepika's film is all about her personal 'andar se strong' story, which is what makes her the superstar and the person she is today."

Safe School Zones across India and Asia

New Delhi: FedEx Express, the world's largest express transportation company and a subsidiary of FedEx Corp. (NYSE: FDX), supports the Global Alliance of NGOs for Road Safety, which represents more than 220 NGOs across the world, to bring the first Alliance Advocates training program to New Delhi.

During this training, 21 grassroots NGO leaders from eight countries around Asia, including representatives from seven states of India, will undertake an innovative safe school zone project that has the potential to save children's lives.

Unsafe road conditions around many schools in Asia are putting children in danger. The participants, known as Alliance Advocates, will use a data-driven approach to identify simple, low-cost changes to roads around a school in New Delhi. If implemented, the changes will bring these roads in line with the minimum standard recommended by the international road safety community. Using the International Road Assessment Programme (iRAP)'s Star Rating for Schools methodology, participants will collect road data, identify actions that would radically improve the safety of students, and create an advocacy plan to present to decision makers, including representatives from the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways (MORTH), local traffic police, and the World Health Organization (WHO). This initial project will provide India's Alliance Advocates with first-hand experience of presenting a case to road policy and infrastructure leaders and representatives in India.

Matthew Davies, managing director Sales for FedEx Express in India, said, "With over 85,000 motorized vehicles operated by FedEx Express across the globe, we are clear in our commitment to raise awareness about road safety beyond our team members to the communities where we live and work, and we are proud to support the initiatives of the Global Alliance of NGOs for Road Safety."

Speaking about the work being done by the Alliance, Ms.LotteBrondum, executive director, said, "Children in some parts of Asia are in danger every day on the way to school and back. The Alliance Advocates that we are training in India will take back realistic and effective action plans, so that children don't have to risk their lives to get an education. We encourage governments to allow them to share their new knowledge and to work together with them to make schools across Asia safer. FedEx's generous commitment and support has made the Alliance Empowerment Program possible, and is equipping NGOs to save lives around the world."

The Alliance Advocates for Road Safety in India will join a growing movement of NGOs who are championing a low-cost, evidence-based approach to road safety. Since the program's inception in 2015, 49 Alliance Advocates have been trained across the globe. As a result of the training, seat belt legislation in Tunisia has been reintroduced leading to a 35% reduction in road deaths in the first month, multi-sectoral partnerships have been established, and an Alliance Advocate in Slovenia has been awarded the European Commission Road Safety Excellence Award for the campaign based on his action plan from the training.

The safe school element of the training was introduced in March 2018 and so far 17 schools in 12 countries across Africa have been assessed and Alliance Advocates are pushing for decision makers for the recommendations to be implemented. In 2017, the Alliance Empowerment Program was awarded the prestigious Prince Michael International Road Safety Award.

Support for these road safety projects is part of the FedEx Cares initiative, where FedEx will invest $200 million in more than 200 communities by 2020 to create opportunities and deliver positive change around the world. Through the FedEx Cares activities, FedEx team members from around the world volunteer their time and talents to support local communities.

Modi, Now advises youth to sell Pakoras- Scindia

Udaipur: Congress leader and former union minister Jyotiraditya Scindia said the BJP had made big promises to the common man before coming to power. Modi had claimed to open a whole treasure of opportunities for the citizens but the reality is that after coming to power, he had to advice the youths to sell pakoras instead", Scindia said taunting at the prime minister's 'Pakora' statement. Scindia was addressing a rally at Bank Tiraha in the city on Monday.

He said the BJP government has dashed the hopes of the unemployed youth, health sector and law of the land has badly suffered in this rule. There are no doctors in government hospitals and no teachers in state schools. " Modi has said that the poor will sleep peacefully while rich will suffer insomnia in the BJP regime but on the contrary 125 people died untimely due to his unwise and hasty decision of notebandi, Scindia said. " Like a popular cold drink advertisement shown on television, he perhaps wanted to do something 'Tuani' which increased the miseries of the poor people of the country".

Slamming the policy of demonetisation, the MP said that the influential people got converted their black money into 'white', no rich person was seen in the queues outside banks while the needy people had to struggle to meet their daily requirements because of notebandi. Appealing support in favour of the Congress candidate DrGirijaVyas, the senior leader said that if voted to power in the center, Congress would free the citizens from the burden of the Gabbar Singh Tax (GST).

'Gotiyo' luring tribal voters with colourful attire, satire

Udaipur: A typical modern day tribal youth loves sun glasses, wears a colourfulturta and carries a mobile always in his hand. This fictional delegate, 'Gotiyo' hence seems to be a real life character who is gaining wide popularity among the tribal population in Banswara district these days. Not only the rural people but even in the city area, people are finding fun in clicking selfies with Gotiyo and reading out his satirical messages on voting.

Gotiyo is the brainchild of the district administration and has been specially designed and created for increasing awareness among the voters by educating them to cast their votes correctly. " Nothing is more integral to democracy than voting and the voters should be educated to exercise their power fairly. Gotiyo literally meaning ' friend' like a true companion is advising people to participate in the largest festival of democracy, informs Kamlesh Sharma Deputy Director, Department of Public Relation, Banswara.

The cartoon character has been designed by a budding cartoonist of the city Ashish Sharma who gave a modern look to the desi character with a cooling glass on his smiling face, a bright red turban and yellow Kurta with white dhoti. More than 5000 Gotiyo stickers have been issued which has been pasted on public transport vehicles as well as roadways buses. The character's cut outs have been put up at various junctions and prime circles in and around the city with messages on fair voting and understanding the EVMs and VVPAT mechanism.

A selfie point also has been set up at the collectorate premises where the common public is being encouraged to click selfies with Gotiyo and post over the social medias to spread the message. Gotiyo's messages have been taken out in a series called 'Aye Hamro' which means ' Hey, listen ' where Gotiyo advices people not to sell their votes in lieu of alcohol or money temptation. " On the voting day, men dressed up as Gotiyo would be made to stand outside each Adarshmatadaankendra to encourage and attract people to cast their votes" Sharma informed.
