

INDIAN INSTITUTE OF MANAGEMENT UDAIPUR HOLDS ITS SEVENTH CONVOCATION CEREMONY

Udaipur: Indian Institute of Management Udaipur conducted the seventh convocation event on March 30th, 2019 at its campus in Udaipur. Total of 239 students received MBA degrees and diplomas in global supply chain management. More than 700 guests comprising of students, parents, alumni, faculty and staff members attended the convocation.

Harsh Pati Singhania, Managing Director, JK Paper Ltd. was the chief guest for the event. In an inspiring message to the graduating students, he said, "The ability to unlearn is as important as the ability to learn. As you become successful, as you grow, do remember, there are others who did have the privilege to be in your shoes and it's our responsibility to give back to the society. Think, whatever we do how can we do in a more sustainable and efficient way".

Pankaj Patel, Chairman, IIM Udaipur Board shared the last year's achievements of the Institute. He emphasized IIM Udaipur's recent accomplishment of becoming the youngest B-School in India to gain AACSB accreditation. He said, "From day one, IIMU has been focussed on building a globally recognized management institution. As we look towards the future, we want to continue to break new ground by focusing on world-class research, forging strong bonds with our corporate partners and providing a transformational experience for our students."

Patel also introduced the newly appointed Board of Governors of IIMU who were present for the ceremony. The Ministry of Human Resource Development has given unprecedented autonomy to IIMs by letting the Institutes choose their own boards by means of the Indian Institutes of Management Act. The new board of the Institute comprises of outstanding entrepreneurs, business leaders, professionals & bureaucrats from the corporate world, governments sector, academia and the development sector. Conferring the degrees to the graduates, Prof. Janat Shah, Director, IIM Udaipur motivated students to be exemplary leaders by pursuing the management profession in a noble manner. He said, "Always take with you the strong moral compass that IIMU has tried to instill in you. This is especially important given the leadership failure which the world is currently witnessing in instances like IL&FS case, Boeing 737 max failure, or the banking crisis. So it is very important that you have a long-term orientation and don't take shortcuts. Remember that management is the noblest of professions if it is practised well. No other occupation offers as many ways to help others learn and grow, to take responsibility and be recognized for achievement, and to contribute to society."

English is not a measurement of Knowledge

Smitha was sitting idle in her room. She was looking sad and upset. I wanted to ask her about it but she refused to talk to me. She comes from a small town. She speaks slowly in English and does not mix up with others.

After few meetings she opened up and shared her problems with me. Her classmates were treating her badly. She comes from a middle class family and not from a good convent school which produces students with heavy accents.

This has become her weakness. She feels awkward in her class. Other students make fun of her accent without knowing her difficulties.

After one year, exams were held and she scored highest marks in her class. Everyone was surprised by her performance.

This incident gave me a chance to write something for those who always judge people by their education standards and speaking skills.

English is merely a language, a source of communication. It has nothing to do with the intelligence.

Europeans, Chinese, Japanese people prefer to speak in their languages where as Indians have a habit to speak in English everywhere.

It's important to talk to foreigners in their language but it is really not necessary to boast off your speaking skills while talking to villagers. I find it very funny sometimes to see educated people behaving like this. They ill treat others who can not speak English.

Why do we underestimate others? Why do we judge people?

Knowledge comes from interacting with others. When we meet with different people from other cultures, we learn and grow faster.

It does not mean that British have all the knowledge. Americans hire Indians because they find us much qualified than other neighboring countries.

Neha is my neighbour. Her husband is convent educated. He feels ashamed of Neha as she speaks in Hindi all the time.

He avoids taking her to parties. His big shot clients are not comfortable with Hindi speaking people.

After all he is an industrialist who can not afford to lose business. Neha's relationship is suffering because of this small issue. Neha has joined English speaking classes where she is learning to speak broken English.

She is MA in Hindi literature but her poor English is the matter of discussion everywhere.

Is this the right way to judge people who simply can not speak a foreign language to communicate with same Nationality?

Why Neha is not allowed to speak in her own mother tongue?

She got round of applause for saying Apple in English but she was being rejected for scoring highest marks in Hindi. Nobody is bothered to know about her choice. She is not comfortable in speaking a foreign language. She can perfectly arrange a party for her husband's clients but she is never allowed to do so. Her Sister in law is an English teacher and this makes her life more miserable. Each and every time her grammar has been criticised by others.

"English Vinglish" was made on this subject. But we are not ready to accept a language as a medium of communication. We will continue to judge others on this parameter and make this a habit to the extent where others would feel ashamed of their speaking skills so badly that they may feel rejected and hopeless.

I think we must learn to respect others capabilities and try to see good qualities in them rather than judging them on the basis of English.

It's just a language and not the measurement of intelligence. Madonna, Ricky Martin and many others could not speak good English and this disability has not made them foolish.

They have proven their skills and gained wealth as well as respect in this world.

We must learn other languages to get more connected with rest of the world. Do not make it a parameter to play with other people's emotions. They may get hurt by your behaviour or lose confidence forever.

Let them share their knowledge with courage.

Maybe you are lacking behind by not knowing your own language.

Make this world a reasonable place to live by not making yourself complicated for others. There may be many fields where you need to improve.

Whenever you feel proud or over confident, look up to the sky and see the vastness of the Universe. Now measure your identity with the Universe. You will be surprised to notice your identity which is merely a dot in the ocean of galaxies.

Don't become a perfectionist, rather, become a protagonist whom people may admire.

"First Successful TAVI of South Rajasthan"

Geetanjali Hospital's Cardiac Team Implant Heart Valve without Surgery Udaipur: Wednesday 27th March, A 65-years-old-man is the first person in Southern Rajasthan to undergo Transcatheter Aortic Valve Implantation (TAVI) successfully claimed Geetanjali Medical College & Hospital's Cardiac Team.

The unique procedure does away with the requirement of open-heart bypass surgery. The landmark was accomplished by a team of doctors including Interventional Cardiologists Dr. Kapil Bhargava, Dr. Ramesh Patel, Dr. Danny Kumar, Dr. Shalabh Agarwal & Dr. Anmol, assisted by Cardiac Thoracic Vascular Surgeon Dr. Sanjay Gandhi & Dr. Ajay Verma, Cardiac Anesthetist Dr. Ankur Gandhi, Neuro Vascular Interventional Radiologist Dr. Sitaram Barath, CCU In-charge Dr. Nikhil Singhvi, Cath Lab Technician Lokesh Kumar and Nursing Staff Imran Khan. The treating Interventional Cardiologist Dr. Ramesh Patel said that the patient, "Lehru Lal Jat (Age 65 years), hailing from Kapasan, had approached the hospital with the complaints of severe breathlessness, chest pain and heart disease that could cause sudden death. On investigations of Echocardiography, it was found that he had a narrowed aortic valve in his heart because of which the valve was squeezing harder to pump blood into aorta (EF was only 20-25%), the main artery supplying blood to brain. He had severe calcified aortic stenosis."

TAVI, he added, is a non-surgical procedure to implant heart valve (aortic valve mostly) by going from a groin vessel (femoral artery) a tissue valve is implanted by a catheter in a simple procedure similar to angioplasty. It is used on elderly patients who cannot have bypass surgery because of problems in other organs like lungs, liver and kidney. The kidneys of this patient were weak with narrowing of aortic valve.

"People with aortic stenosis cannot undergo open heart surgery due to old age and other complications. For such patients, TAVI proves to be a fresh lease of life without which they would not have life expectancy of more than one year."

Interventional Cardiologist Dr. Kapil Bhargava said that, "In TAVI, the patient can be discharged soon after the procedure. In this case also the patient was discharged the second day of the procedure with good biventricular functions. The said procedure can be preferred for intermediate and high risk patients and is better than open heart surgery in certain parameters."

CEO Geetanjali Medical College & Hospital Mr. Prateem Tamboli congratulated the cardiac team for implanting heart valve without open heart surgery for the first time in Southern Rajasthan. "Now elderly people and other patients who cannot withstand open heart surgery can be benefited from this technique. Geetanjali Hospital has always established itself as a leader for world class innovations. Moreover, This technique is available with only few centers of Northern India, to which Geetanjali Hospital has added its name which is a proud moment for Geetanjali as well as the whole Udaipur City. The patient opted for this procedure are likely to recover early and can get back to their normal life soon. It also helps avoiding post surgery complications (if any). Such patients who are not appropriate for surgery are relatively at a higher risk if taken for surgery," he added.

Lecture on Methodology for field identification of plants

Udaipur: Correct identification of plants are essential for scientific validation of any plant drug and for identification purpose, prior knowledge about relevant flora is also necessary. This was expressed by Dr. Vartika Jain who is working as Assistant Professor, Department of Botany, Govt. Meera Girls' College, Udaipur in a three day Re-orientation training program of Ayurvedic Medical Officers organized at RTDC Hotel Kajri on Wednesday as a Trainer. She was introduced to participants by Dr. B.L. Jain.

Dr. Vartika explained difference between floristic, ethnobotanical and medicinal plant survey and gave important clues for preliminary identification of plants in a field visit. She also explained the technique to properly preserve a plant for making a herbarium specimen and which are the important indexed Herbaria of country where the preserved plant specimen could be submitted and identified correctly. She emphasized on keeping the voucher specimen of a plant/herbal drug before starting any scientific laboratory research on the plant. Various methodologies to document the medicinal importance of the plant species as given by local folk were also explained to participants in detail.

Later Dr. Vartika also gave information about various folk medicinal uses of some local plants growing in surroundings of Udaipur for example

Guduchi, Aduśa, Aak, Ghavpatti, Cholai etc. along with their pictorial presentation and raised questions on preserving indigenous medicinal herbs

him. One of the very famous song "blown in the wind focuses on humanity issues with a great philosophy. The traditional folk songs has been rendered in rock and roll style in a peculiar manner... A. Zimmerman is called bob Dylan. He expresses the suppressions and indiscriminate about down trodden and marginalized societies. So many questions are raised in his songs against the malice and ruthless politicians. No doubt there are answers but it is so essential the nobility and staunch to find out and implement to gain the goals as we observe in the song, "Blowin in the Wind". For the demand of equality and human rights when is avoided by orthodox and detectors then suppressed people as victims have to adopt the way of violence. Since last decades we observe, there is not good human environment in perception of peace, prosperity and equalities in economic and social justice across the world so it is generally considered that music and literature might be great influenced sours for expression of views and grievances, messages inner core of cardiac and to protest against negative forces and abrupt volcano so upheaval. We see the dense philosophy and the great features in bob Dylan's songs after introspection by him when his beloved waives dead. The performance of Bob Dylan has been appreciated throughout the world. He has composed a number of albums with collaboration of the Columbia Company which is one of prominent film company of United States of America and filmed a documentary too. The Swedish noble prize academy which is also notorious, cause of indiscriminate and partialities in selection of aspirants of the glorious noble prize since the juries of Swedish noble academy used to negate many African writers as Chinua Achebe, the father of African novel.
