How are you?

Reasons remain unknown,
Yet each time,
A friendly mouth questions,
'How are you?'
I can feel it,
Mocking at my pain,
Rebuking my scars,
Sarcastically saying, 'Oh no! Alas!'
My scars reverberate in pain,
I do cry on several random days
But I do understand,
Sadists receive happiness,
In a thousand such ways!
I can feel those words,
Smirking in pride,
Making fun of my plight.
So,
The other day,
From my lasting autumn,
Whilst you gain the audacity,
To question once again,
'How are you?'
My response would surely be,
'Kintsugi- Broken and Shining,
Perhaps,
I'm just like you!'
Almost alive,
And almost dead
Both at the same time.
I'm Everything and nothing,
I'm a memorial built with reminiscences,
Of the laughter of dead people,
And their breathing identities,
Asphyxiated with the smell,
Of some lost souls,
And some lost friendships.
I know,
It isn't you,
The person at fault.
You can't help me
And I can't help it at all,
And thus I decide,
I would leave saying 'I'm fine'
And question you back
Only to get a similar answer,
Understanding deep within,
Your failed attempt,
To disguise
A resembling inner tumult.
