Widow-abandoned and ST girls will get free training in constable recruitment

Unique initiative of Udaipur IG and Collector

Udaipur: Two Dabang and dynamic senior women officers of the district have launched a unique initiative to promote and encourage women empowerment. Udaipur Division Inspector General of Police Smt. Vinita Thakur and District Collector Smt. Anandi have pioneered the training of the needy widow-abandoned educated women and talented ST girl students in the upcoming Constable Recruitment Examination. The training program, in collaboration with the Anushka Academy and My Class on behalf of the district administration, was launched on Monday at the Guru Gobind Singh Higher Secondary School in the city by G and Collector.

IG Smt. Thakur said that our efforts will be proved meaningful only if a large number of you are selected and provide services in our department. She said that the work of the police department is of full discipline and responsibility. This program has been launched to empower these women to have a special identity in the society. IG called upon all the participants to take advantage of this opportunity with all their hard work and dedication and achieve success. IG also informed that special information will be provided from time to time by top officers of Police Department during this training program.

The Collector told the participants that if the administration is providing you an opportunity, then it becomes your responsibility to meet this with full hard work and honesty and achieve success by doing your best in this type of competition examination. She said that the women who are here should never think of themselves as lonely and helpless but always strived. To make these women self-reliant, provide equal opportunities and have launched this initiative to provide a platform and its success depends on the efforts of all of you. The Collector also informed that under this training, various administrative and senior officers will share their experiences and motivate the participants.

90 women will get training Additional District Collector Sanjay Kumar informed that 90 women will be imparted training in this program organized by the administration. This includes 19 widows and 19 abandoned women and 52 tribal girls who will be imparted various subject specialists training as per the syllabus. He informed that this holiday lasting 45 days will remain on January 26 only. At the same time weekly test will be taken every Sunday with continuous subject based classes. In addition to this, the study of the previous day will be repeated in a period of 15-20 minutes after starting the class every day. During this time computer training will also be provided to the participants.

Representatives of various voluntary organizations were present on this occasion, including RPS officer Chetna Bhati, Chief District Education Officer Shivi Gaur, Women Empowerment Deputy Director Sanjay Joshi, Rajiv Surana of Anushka Academy, Praveen Paneri, Social Security Officer. The program was conducted by Sanjay Lunavat of My Class.

Miraj Group launches Digital Marketing Company – Orionators

The year 2019 has been a game-changer for the digital universe, especially in terms of global marketing. With the evolution in the field of artificial intelligence, data-driven marketing, and voice search engine, the industry saw a brilliant blend of strategy, ideas, and technology.

After the immense success of Miraj Group of Companies, they officially inaugurated Orionators, a full-suite digital marketing company, and India's first agency-based training institute "Orionators School of Learning".

The digital scenario keeps on evolving in 365 ways in 365 days. Orionators is set to capture the advancing trends and showcase the belief of how a brand can stay on top in today's competitive online game.

Orionators will be utilizing all the best techniques which the industry saw in the previous year and also give us what should be expected from 2020 and years to follow. From LinkedIn adding new AI tools to improve matches to Facebook giving a glimpse of its work on ultra-realistic VR Avatars, there is too much that has come to pass. LinkedIn added new interest targeting options for advertisement campaigns, Google+ received an official end date and Instagram opened its AR Filter Creation tools to all users.

Talking about the launch of Orionators, Ankit Deopura, Business Head of the company said, "If Miraj is doing this, I will make sure it is right. Because the magic happens at the place between the digital experiences that build brand loyalty, and the customer experiences that reward them. We help businesses in each vertical go-to-market and grow by involving, executing, and constantly evolving a custom strategy.

OSL (Orionators School of Learning) is a platform for job seekers, students, entrepreneurs, business owners, and working professionals. The main idea behind the institute is to pair the students with the faculties who are the actual working professionals, doing the same routines in their agencies. It is to develop the key- aspect of value-based learning and giving students the edge of learning from the leading professionals from the field. The students will have an opportunity to do an internship with Miraj Group.

He further added, "By April 2020, we will mark our presence in five more cities".
