Two-day 'STEM' seminar@ Lio-Ka-Guda

Udaipur: A two-day seminar to train teachers with the 'STEM' education methodology was held on Friday at Seva Maharth, Badi, under the

through the 'STEM' education system. STEM, Key Founder and CEO Dr. Paddy Sharma said that STEM education system plants, irrigation, light and safety etc. are equally important as STEM education method. The STEM education system is based on science, technology, engineering and mathematics. Creating curiosity in children through these subjects and satisfying them with the study of these subjects is also included.

she said that children know what a tsunami is? But they do not know what the rescue is due to the tsunami? The STEM education method answers all these questions to the child. Georgia Southern University's STEM instructor Dr. Kania Greer said that it is a teaching method that has the potential to highlight the latent talents of children. The children do not have to be limited to only fantasies, but also to make their fantasies come true and this STEM education system easily makes it possible. Instructor Dr. Karin Fisher said who will become tomorrow? No one knows this, but STEM education system understands the feelings of children and helps them in the same direction as they wish to be. she said that they have implemented STEM in some schools in Mumbai and Kolkata and the results are getting better.

Narayan Seva Sansthan is the first center in Rajasthan where two-day training of teachers has been completed for the implementation of this method. The seminar coordinator Manoj Baroth said that the objective of STEM education system based on science, technology, engineering and mathematics is to effectively coordinate this method in the Indian education environment by upgrading the level of education.

Welcoming the academics from America, Institute Director Vandana Aggarwal said that the school of the institute is constantly working for the all-round development of the economically weak disabled and destitute children of the society. By implementing the STEM education system, we believe that the foundation of the future of children will be strengthened and we will be able to give scientists like Einstein to the world. At the seminar Prema Ojha (Teacher) shared her experiences of STEM seminars.

Former BJP leader Yashwant Sinha on Saturday said the Central government was on the "brink of bankruptcy" due to the economic slowdown. He also said the economy was passing through its "worst-ever crisis" due to the "death of demand" in sectors. Sinha was speaking on the sidelines of his "Gandhi Shanti Yatra" against Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) and National Register of Citizens (NRC) which has arrived in Udaipur. At anand Bhawan a press conference was organized, in which MLA and Ex minister Gajander Singh along with DCC president Lal Singh Jhala City president Gopal Sharma, spokesmen Pankaj Sharma, & other leaders of congress were present He reiterated the new citizenship law was a ploy of Narendra

Modi government to divert attention of people from important issues like the "failure of economy". This government ignored problems related to the economy and tried to portray that everything is fine by manipulating figures. But the data cannot be fudged forever. Now, they have accepted the problem and are saying that they will do something about it," Sinha said. The annual inflation, based on monthly wholesale price index (WPI) was recorded at 3.24 per cent in April 2019. "This government has used everything (funds) at its disposal. It is on the brink of bankruptcy now," he said. Sinha further said the lack of demand was affecting the economy, which "started with rural distress and gradually spread to urban areas due to demonetisation in 2016". "The problem has now spread to all sectors. For example, the transport sector is witnessing a slump in the demand of cars and two-wheelers. In the past, we had seen the demand slump, but this time it is the 'death of demand', which is unprecedented," Sinha said. He said the upcoming Budget will be crucial. "Another thing which never happened in the past is PM Narendra Modi himself conducting 13 pre-budget consultations with stakeholders unlike in the past when finance ministers used to conduct the same," Sinha added. In such scenario, the government had introduced the "divisive CAA". He said Union Home Minister Amit Shah had announced in Parliament that the government will bring in National Register of Citizens. "The CAA and probable NRC are aimed at diverting attention of people and dividing the country on religious lines. There was no need to bring in the CAA, as the old act had the provision to give citizenship, and many people were given citizenship under it," Sinha said. Considering the experience of the NRC in Assam, the exercise should never be introduced in the country, he added. He also questioned the need for the National Population Register (NPR), saying Aadhaar is equivalent to the NPR. Later in the evening he shared his views in DCC meeting the was attended by Raghuveer Singh Meena and all other senior congress officials.
