Five Year of Royal Harbinger

The past five years have been phenomenal. From nowhere to this stage, the lone English newspaper of the Mewar region has scaled greater heights than was expected. A region that has been dominated by the Hindi medium accepted the English version of media with open heart and arms. The media team is truly overwhelmed. With that, we see a greater scope of improvement and we will leave no stone unturned.

Over the years, we have learned so much through our well-wishers and critics. We take everybody with us and that is why we have a cohesive team of contributors who help us spread the right word with the right tone and approach.

The same news hits every media house and it depends on the editors to give importance to one news item while pushing the other to the other pages and further totally ignoring one useless news. This selection must be unbiased and that's where the integrity and honesty of the editor come into play.

This is the whole difference that the Royal Harbinger brings to you. We focus on the news story and publish it on its merit rather than other factors.

The clarity of thoughts and transparency in our media work is one of the main reasons why prominent writer and eminent journalists support us by their articles and well-researched content.

The Royal Harbinger has also worked towards making the newspaper a happy reading tool where people learn something and gain knowledge.

We have tried to put more emphasis on positive stories that inspire. We have also focussed to find development stories that make the city proud. Generally, the negative stories are published with so much vigor and spices, they become synonymous with life and society. We start believing that all people are bad and everything the place is unsafe. In the crowd of sensational stories, we fail to recognize that there are many people who like to live with harmony, there are people who clean up their surroundings without getting noticed, some boys are determined to marry without any dowry, some men are fighting the society hard to give a status of equality to their wives, and so on. These are the people who deserve to be highlighted. These are the people who are correcting society and are holding a beacon in the darkness of crimes and injustice. Royal Harbinger is open to the stories created by brave people who dare to change the bad rituals and work to bring peace in the lives of everyone. Anything, which is bad or is a burden on the people of society is bound to change. Indeed, future generations will feel the heat and will take corrective measures. But the pattern has already started towards a balanced and light-weighted lifestyle. And Royal Harbinger is taking the lead in supporting a comfortable life for everyone. We would like to thank our readers, contributors, sponsors, and critics for their love and support. It is and will remain our collective endeavor to build a society full of love, development, and harmony.

The Nightingale....

Zaara English theatre has been active for the last two years in staging plays with a water-tight script, which could easily be simplified on stage in just about 40 minutes.

As glossing, the pathos of characters is numero uno The time taken to do so is only a peripheral. According to that last Sunday, the group staged another 40 minutes play titled "The Nightingale" at ambabal wadi farm Rani road.

The play had eminent personalities from theatre and various art fields as attendees.

The play had at its cynosure greed and innocence, forming a very different yet spilling motive.

The premise was inspired by a famous poem penned by Mr. Vikram Seth.

Accentuating the intense relationship between frog and nightingale..

Where frog epitomizes greed and illicit ideas, And Nightingale brings to fore innocence and loyalty. The poem accentuates the woes of the poor nightingale as she fails to see through the advances of the frog. Zaara successfully contemporaries the poem with human characters.

Purvaansh Ranka simplified Nightingale's character. Tejas dave donned the colors of a corrupt Manager of a music studio, Iftishaam played The mother of the Nightingale, Himang Chaudhary, kushaagra Raanka, and Ayaan were the narrators. Akhilesh Jhaa gives music, Photography by Narayan Singh, Set Design by Arvind Jaissy and Bharti Sisodia, Play Coordinator Tejas Dave, Arvind jaissy was both the playwright and the director.

Approach your exam with a positive Mind-Set

As the examination dates approach, it grips students with implicit fear, unnecessary anxiety, and unusual strain at all levels, especially those appearing for the board examination. Often the examination fever brings to an end all the recreational activities, robbing the very joy of students' lives. While examination does create a certain level of worry, several other aspects cause excessive anxiety. Unrealistic self-imposed lofty goals for high marks, impractical expectations, and undue pressurizing by parents, peer competition, misplaced ambitions to outperform others are some of the aspects that mount undue nervousness and over burdening. It is high time that students take examination positively as a challenge and not as a painful event and the end of everything in life. Often excessive anxiety is also related to lack of self-motivation, self-confidence and preparedness. While students grapple with their examination fear, here are a few tips that will help them boost their selves and make them emerge confident achievers not only in the upcoming exams but also in life in general.

Have a Positive Approach: First and foremost, take your exam with a positive approach, negativity will only increase your nervousness, hamper your preparation, and affect your results. Follow a Timetable: Insist upon yourself to make and follow a time table, it will make the preparations easy. Also, self-discipline is important not only for exam preparation but also for life. Make Time for Revision - Make it a point to keep sufficient time to revise and review what you have learned. Write with neat and clean handwriting - This is yet another essential aspect for students. Put yourself in the shoes of an examiner. You will expect a clean and neatly written answer-sheet. Do your best to deliver the same in your examination. Solve and Practice Sample Papers • Eat Nutritious Food and Drink sufficient water and keep yourself healthy Do not forgo good night sleep and some time for relaxation to keep yourself vitalized Remain calm and composed while preparing and writing your exam papers.

Parents and Mentors: Do not compare your child's performance with other children's achievements. Don't force impossible targets on them. These can lead to several negative consequences on the young minds. Rather, stand by them; be extremely supportive and encouraging ensuring that they feel loved and cared for. Mentor and motivate them to remain steadfast, emotionally balanced and robustly anchored to their goal.

Dear students, remember that good marks may get you into a reputed college but falling a little short of it will not be an obstacle in reaching your fullest potential. You are precious, lovable and a wonderful person who can make a difference in the society with your positive contribution. Spend time in prayer and draw energy and inspiration to remain focused. Turn your anxiety into positive motivation, and do not get bogged down by exams. Be positive while you approach not only exams but any challenge in life. You will only grow stronger and emerge victoriously. With your hard work, determination, and effort you will be a proud winner. "Do not be anxious about anything, but in every situation, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God."

Wishing you success and a bright future ahead!
