

The Propaganda Machinery Is in Full Swing

The Bhartiya Janata Party has decided to unleash a massive propaganda campaign on the completion of one year in power in its second term in the Union Government. Had it been a normal time for the country no body would have said anything but when the whole country is facing a huge challenge in the face of Covid19 and nearly 1.5 lakh people have been found positive, it would be a heartless exercise that BJP has announced. BJP has announced to hold 1000 virtual press conferences and virtual 750 rallies. In addition, the Prime Minister is going to write a letter which will be sent to 100 million people. The party workers have been asked to distribute face covers and sanitizers. 150 media centers have been asked to hold press conferences for a week. All these will involve a huge amount of human resource as well as digital resource. More than this, this campaign will eat away a huge portion of air time of national media and a huge space in print and digital media. The campaign will take over all other priorities of the media and people at large. This will undoubtedly divert the attention of the people, media and bureaucracy from the real issue of fighting out Corona.

Editorial

It seems that the BJP has its own agenda other than the agenda of the country. Its agenda is to come back in power either by winning an election or by any other means. On social media already there are posts saying that in the wake of the pandemic the resources required for elections should be saved and PM Narendra Modi should be continued as PM till 2029. Apparently it may not mean anything at this moment but a time might come when by regular media campaign this demand is related to nationalism and anybody talking of the need for elections be called anti-national. Who knows what is there in the womb of future but the announcement of BJP about the propaganda campaign makes it pretty clear that the agenda it has set will not be postponed even for a day. Even on the ration kits picture of PM Modi was printed. As rightly said he can turn a challenge into an opportunity. It may not be true in the context of the nation but it is certainly true in the context of the party. The propaganda machinery has used the pandemic crisis in advertising the party to lure the voters.

Millions of labourers are walking hundreds of miles to reach their homes. Hundreds of them have died on the way. A girl rode on bicycle 1200 kms with her ailing father but the governments did not feel ashamed. The workers were thrown out by their employers but the governments did not use the Disaster Act to force them to retain their workers. While traveling to their home the workers were treated as criminals. For days together they travelled without enough food and water. BJP did not mobilize the party workers as it has done now to propagate its message through this propaganda campaign. It is for the people of India to see and take their own wise assessment.
