

Child trafficking is society stigma: efforts will have to be made together - Child Commission

Udaipur: All sections of society, whether women, children and men, are victims of human trafficking. But cases of child disappearance and trafficking are increasing every year. Children are more affected by being sensitive, innocent, and vulnerable during the current crisis in the Corona epidemic. Due to financial constraints and other reasons, the cases of child labor and child trafficking are more likely to increase.

At this time, government and non-governmental organizations will have to make collective efforts and formulate an action plan from now on. The child welfare committee and the anti-trafficking unit will have to be actively keeping the rural areas and tribal areas where there is a possibility of child trafficking in the high-risk zone. The above views were expressed by Rosie Taba, Member, National Commission for Protection of Child Rights, while addressing the online seminar organized by Gayatri Seva Sansthan, Udaipur, on the occasion of World Human Trafficking Day.

On this occasion, Member of the Rajasthan State Child Rights Protection Commission, Government of Rajasthan, and in charge of Child Labor / Trafficking Cell, Dr. Shailendra Pandya presented the Crime India Report for the year 2014 by the National Crime Records Bureau, as per the directions of Hon'ble Supreme Court. In the case of children also, the police should take the necessary action by assessing kidnapping and trafficking. If no missing child is found in 6 months, then the said case will be sent by the police to the Human Trafficking Unit of the concerned district. As the keynote speaker of the seminar, Prof. Dr. Mahavir Jain, former Hon'ble Supreme Court Commissioner, and Child Labor Specialist, gave information about Section 370 of the Indian Penal Code and Juvenile Justice Act, highlighting the various dimensions of child abuse.

In the seminar, Delhi Supreme Court advocate and child rights expert advocate Anant Kumar Asthana gave information about the legal provisions for child trafficking, highlighting the process of issuing a bonded discharge certificate.

Sampurna Barua, a social worker and child rights activist who filed various writs for children in the seminar, gave light on the current challenges while providing information about the government's different schemes.

Aditi Upadhyay, Joint Director of Gayatri Seva Sansthan, gave information about the reception and local issues in the webinar. In the webinar, Nusrat Naqvi, Member of Rajasthan State Child Rights Protection Commission, Member of Government of Rajasthan, Dhruv Kumar Kavia, President of Child Welfare Committee Udaipur, a voluntary organization working on children's issues in Southern Rajasthan, Member of Banswara and Durgapur, Convener of Child Protection Network B. K. Gupta, Sarfaraz Sikh of Tribal Development Forum Kotda also expressed their views.

State-level webinars included representatives of international and national level institutions working in the state, child welfare committee, juvenile justice board, and field workers of Gayatri Seva Sansthan.

Being pro-active to protect the Corona by District Collector

Udaipur: Chetan Deora has instructed all the Block Chief Medical Officers to work pro-actively to protect from Corona. We do not have to give up on this significant and essential campaign because of the small problems in the field.

Collector Deora addressed a crucial meeting of the Chief Medical Officers of all the blocks of the district at the Collectorate on Thursday to protect against Corona.

On this occasion, he said that the COVID Center at the block level was fully resourceful and ready-to-operate. He told the officials that the personnel present at the block and gram panchayat level of the department are in direct contact with the general public, so they keep constant contact with the villagers and keep them informed about ways to prevent Corona. He said that letting the general public know that due to their negligence, the infection will suddenly increase, it will be impossible to stop it. The Collector expressed the need to make the villagers aware in this regard and directed to do IEC.

During the meeting, Chief Medical and Health Officer Dr. Dinesh Kharadi explained the strategy being adopted for block-wise corona rescue and the action being taken on the cases received. During this period, the Collector also personally interacted with the entire block CMHO and discussed in detail the status, problems, and methods of corona rescue in his neighborhood. Medical departmental officers, along with all the block chief medical officers, were present in the meeting.

Corona not left out of village, town, and neighborhood

During the meeting, the Collector said that if Corona is positive in a village, city or locality, we have to ensure that the virus infection does not come out of that village, town or area. He instructed the concerned medical officers to provide measures to prevent this in view of local conditions.

Corona Warriors should also be cautious and careful:

During the meeting, the Collector expressed concern that cases of corona warriors getting infected with Corona have also come to light in the last few days. He said that every person should work fully alert and careful and take necessary precautions to protect people as well as to protect themselves from it.

Amidst Jubilations All Around CPIML and Democratic Forces Oppose Politicization of Religion

When BJP and RSS were celebrating the laying of the foundation stone of the Ram Temple in Ayodhya, a group of democratic people, intellectuals and activists led by CPIML opposed the participation of the Prime Minister and the government in a religious ceremony. They alleged that this is in violation of the constitutional provisions. Narendra Modi may participate as an individual but he cannot participate as a Prime Minister in the ceremony of a religious group. They also submitted a memorandum of their opposition to the ADM city addressed to the President of India.

Addressing a short meeting at the collector's office Prof. R.N. Vyasa, former Dean M.L.S. University, said that the BJP is misusing the power to further demeaning the values of the constitution. It is carrying forward the agenda of communal divide. Prof. H.S. Chandalia said that there are more pressing issues than this when the whole world is facing a deadly pandemic, the economy is in bad shape, millions of people have lost their jobs, at least this should not have been the priority of the Prime Minister. D.S. Paliwal said that religion has always been a tool in the hands of the ruling classes and BJP and RSS are doing the same to divert the attention of the people from the real issues before the country. Saurabh Naruka of AICCTU said that the Covid guidelines have been violated in this programme in which more than 500 people have gathered. He said that the Supreme Court has found the demolition of Babri Masjid wrong. Why then the culprits not being punished? By participating in this programme the Prime Minister is trying to legitimize a crime. Among those present in the demonstration were Prof. Sudha Chaudhary, Prof. L.R. Patel, Dr. Chandra Deo Ola, Shankar Lal Chaudhary and a number of writers, journalists and social activists.

Green People Society members carried out shramdaan

Udaipur: Shramdaan was carried out for eradication of Lantana at Sajjanganr Wildlife Sanctuary on Sunday under the auspices of the newly formed Green People Society for environmental protection of Udaipur

Under the direction of the President of the Society and retired CCF Rahul Bhatnagar and DFO Ajit Unkoi, this morning did a shramdaan to eradicate harmful weed Lantana in the sanctuary premises. Early in the morning, only a member of the Green People Society to reach the Sajjanganr Sanctuary. Here they uprooted harmful weeds from place to place. The members used a particular instrument, the monkey jack, which uprooted Lantana with roots.

Bhatnagar said that it is imperative to uproot it as it spreads too much, and other vegetation does not thrive due to its over-spread. All members labored for more than 2 hours and removed this Lantana. DFO Unkoi said that instead of Lantana, grass seeds would be sprinkled so that the grass here can flourish and the wildlife of the sanctuary can get food while maintaining the balance of biodiversity.

On this occasion, team members retired DFO BS Rana, PS Chundawat, environmentalist Dr. Satish Sharma, bird expert Vinay Dave, WWF divisional representatives Arun Soni and Mahendra Jain, Sharad Srivastava Ismail, Durga, Kushal as well as Forest Department officials-employees were present. Environmental expert Dr. Satish Sharma said that Lantana is a native plant of America. It is growing very fast due to which the forest area is being cut down. Due to the excessive growth of Lantana, it does not allow the local vegetation to get sufficient water and light. It has started reducing the local vegetation due to the decrease of the local vegetation when the wildlife Meals have stopped or decreased. Due to this, vegetarian animals have started moving towards crops and causing harm. Due to the decrease of vegetarian animals, food has been reduced to non-vegetarian animals, and non-vegetarian life has also begun to attacking domesticated animals. In this way, Lantana is strongly affecting the food chain and biodiversity and it is very important to remove it. He said the land is moist due to the rainy season, so it is right to uproot Lantana.

Adequate green and blue space required in new urban areas

Udaipur: It is necessary to keep a minimum of forty percent green area in new suburban areas built with population expansion. All the old ponds and step wells of every new suburban area should be kept intact and protected. Also, the habitats of small wildlife and birds living in urban areas should be protected, and this idea was put in a dialogue organized on Sunday. The dialogue under the aegis of India Water Partnership underlined the usefulness of green and blue space for a clean environment and physical, mental, and emotional health.

Venkatash Sharma, Additional Principal Chief Conservator of Forests and Additional Director of HCM, said that the Forest Policy has stated the need for twenty-three percent forest area but more for control of vehicular and urban life-style pollution in urban areas. The Green area is a must. Dr. Tej Razdan and Dr. Anil Mehta of the Lake Conservation Society said that for the stability and adequate availability of surface water and groundwater, it is necessary to conserve traditional water sources. It protects from both floods and droughts. Water resources can be saved only by the active role and engagement of citizens. Tej Shankar Paliwal, member of the Lake Development Authority and Nand Kishore Sharma, director of the Gandhi Manav Kalyan Samiti, said that urban expansion should be done while preserving mountains, trees, and water. The population expansion on the hills should be curbed, and every person should take responsibility for planting and preserving at least ten trees.

Educationist Kushal Rawal and lake lover Ramesh Chandra Rajput, Drupad Singh, Pallav Dutta, urged the younger generation to play an active role in saving green and blue areas and creating a beautiful, healthy city. Before the dialogue, shramdaan was carried out from Pichola Barighat, floating bottles of liquor, polythene, and household waste in the lake were taken out. Shramdaan was attended by Ramesh Chandra Rajput, Drupad Singh Chauhan, Ram Lal Gehlot, Kushal Rawal, Gopal Kumawat, Lake Development Authority member Tej Shankar Paliwal, environmental expert Nand Kishore Sharma.
