

Rajasthan must get the status of a special state

Recently, Rajasthan celebrated its 73rd Foundation Day on March 30, 2021. After independence, Rajasthan was formed by integrating 22 erstwhile princely states of small and big princes in various seven phases. On this occasion two grand functions were organized, and in the function then Prime Minister Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru was himself present. While at the time of formation of Greater Rajasthan Union, Sardar Vallabh Bhai Patel, then Union Home Minister came to Jaipur and the rituals of formal formation of Rajasthan were observed. Since then 30th March is celebrated as the Rajasthan Foundation Day. However, the process of formation of Rajasthan continued and concludes on November 01, 1956 with merger of Ajmer Merwara in Rajasthan. Currently, area wise Rajasthan is the biggest state of India. Earlier, Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh were the biggest states in terms of area and population, but later on these states were split in making of new Uttarakhand and Chhattisgarh states. India is the biggest democratic country of the world. Government machinery of the country works on a federal structure. Post independence an assumption got stronger that the bigger states were a big hurdle in the overall development. So only later on new states were formed splitting the bigger states, and the process continues even today.

An imminent danger is looming on the existence of Rajasthan in view of many problems like ground and underground water, lack of employment opportunities, mass immigration, etc. prevailing in the tribal area of southern Rajasthan. In recent past unpalatable incidences on Delhi Mumbai route on NH Highway 8 via Rajasthan and Gujarat are really concerning.

Recently Ganesh Goghra, MLA from Dungarpur said that tribals are not Hindus, and demanded to experiment a separate tribal code and was supported by some tribal MLAs and organizations. It is said that it is not novel a dream of a new Bhil state merging border tribal areas of Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh, Gujarat and Maharashtra. One of the leading Bhil leaders late Bheekha Bhai Bhil dreamt of this long back. Later on tribal leaders of Gujarat and Madhya Pradesh also joined and supported this campaign, but didn't succeed owing to the strong political leadership between state and the center. However, with emergence of a new political party in Rajasthan and Gujarat this possibility is again growing. Some tribal students too got published their research papers and books speculating a new Bhil state. At the same time, a few segments of people do not support the idea to divide this biggest terrain of the country under adverse geographical conditions be divided leading more probabilities of development for the smaller regions. Many years ago, then leader of opposition Maharawal Lakshman Singh of Dungarpur also demanded to divide the state in two parts as Eastern and Western (Maru Pradesh-Arid Zone) Rajasthan taking oldest Aravali Hills range of the world as base that divides the state in two natural parts. But, he withdrew his demand when he was reminded of his contribution in formation of Rajasthan and unification of former princely states in the capacity of being president of the board of erstwhile princes.

Both the leading parties congress and BJP are also not in favour of making two states by dividing Rajasthan. Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot has denied this possibility on many occasions, at the same former chief minister Vasundhara Raje also never supported this demand, but both the parties have been supporting to grant a special category of state to Rajasthan and grant permission to Rajasthan Canal Project worth nearly 40,000 crore rupees to render a permanent solution of drinking water and irrigation in 13 districts of the state.

Is It Time To Call 'COVID-19' As The Demolisher Of Fake Human Futuristic Pride?

For so long now that we're observing an unfortunate fight between our human world and a new unknown pandemic - COVID 19. World Ministries are blaming one another over the doubt on its root cause, putting in force painful strategies to prevent its spread, hastily competing to launch vaccines and then, increasing our risk of suffering from their deadly side effects. In this whole massacre, are we not realizing that we're still very minute to think ourselves as the strongest living beings?

Is it this competition that we think to be our weapon of futuristic approach? If that is our vision, its bad part is worldwide COVID-19 death in post vaccination time has already reached above millions (10 lakh). Number of infected people is rising fast in the unit of crores. New and more dangerous coronavirus variants are spreading worldwide that we cannot stop. Latest report has confirmed their symptoms identified in people of Brazil, South Africa and United Kingdom. Since the lockdown is lifted this year, if the transmission is not controlled immediately, we've a possibility of seeing more deaths and infections in coming days.

Then, how we can claim on our capability of being advanced and secured? The event of COVID-19 is not an ignorable instance only to be considered as a medical drawback. It indicates towards our failure in building an ideal futuristic human world. It proves that our competition is not supporting our progress. Instead it is leading towards more misery and fatality where we're unsure to ever recover.

Forti urges business people to prioritize the safety of themselves and their customers

Udaipur: Mr. Praveen Suthar, Co-Chairman of the Federation of Rajasthan Trade and Industry (Forti) branches, has urged the entire business community, looking at the current state of Corona, to keep themselves, families, of all the employees working here as well as their customers have been asked to prioritize safety from Covid, in the flow of the second wave of Corona is gradually accelerating, in which case even slight negligence can prove fatal.

Suthar told in a statement issued that the most significant need at this time is that business people should maintain self-governance so that the re-lock down can be avoided. If this self-governance is not created, then Rajasthan could be the victim of another round of lock-down. Therefore, business people should be vigilant to protect themselves and family and at the same time ensure safety for both employees and customers at their business place and ensure strict compliance of all rules.

Suthar has made a special appeal to the shopkeepers to strictly abide by the government's guidelines because the government's steps are public, and we should keep our working period in line with these guidelines. Put all the masks on the work premises, and any customer who comes should also apply the mask, explain it to the customer without using the mask.

They also say that the government has expedited the vaccination process to protect Corona, so all the businessmen over 45 years should avail themselves of the opportunity of covid vaccination and get themselves, family members and employees vaccinated so that the state to prevent the second wave of Corona from spreading.
