The state government should reduce its VAT on petrol-diesel- Joshi

Chittorgarh: the Congress government of Rajasthan, which pretends to protest the increase in petrol and diesel price, should first reduce the VAT on it from its state government. BJP state vice-president MP CP Joshi said this while reacting to the performance of Congress in Rajasthan on Friday. MP Joshi said that in the whole of India, any state government had imposed VAT, then it is Rajasthan. The amount of VAT on petrol is more than Rs 36 in Rajasthan, whereas in Uttar Pradesh Rs 26.80, in Haryana Rs 25, in Punjab Rs 24.79, and Gujarat, it is only Rs 20.10. Similarly, VAT on diesel is Rs 26 in Rajasthan, Rs 17.28 in Uttar Pradesh, Rs 16.40 in Haryana, Rs 15.94 in Punjab, and Rs 20.20 in Gujarat.

This comparative study shows that the Congress in Rajasthan is only pretending to be a performance.

MP Joshi said that instead of blaming the central government, the Rajasthan government should give immediate relief by reducing the VAT rate similar to its border states if it wants public interest. Due to the increase in VAT rate of the Rajasthan government, many transporters in Rajasthan get diesel-filled vehicles from neighboring states. MP Joshi said that the petrol pump owners of the border districts of Rajasthan had asked the state government to reduce VAT by giving several blinks so that their sales can be the same as before. However, due to the increased VAT of the Rajasthan government, the petrol pumps of the border districts are on the verge of closure, and the people here get diesel and petrol from the neighboring state, so the Rajasthan government is incurring a massive loss of revenue.

MP Joshi said that the Center has always tried in the last seven years that despite the fluctuations in the international rates of crude oil, it has never affected the VAT of the Center too much.

Dr. Pradeep Kumawat's first poetic film premiered

Udaipur: The entire human race had to face horrific scenes due to the corona pandemic. Seeing the untimely death of many people, lack of oxygen, and mortal pain amidst burning pyres in the crematorium, educationist, poet, and director of Alok Sansthan, Dr. Pradeep Kumawat's mind got disturbed. To convey the message to the people by effectively portraying the human sentiment, Dr. Kumawat thought of writing a poem and making a film on it.

Dr. Pradeep Kumawat, through his pen, has dedicated to the masses by making a poetic creative film "Waqt Aisa Bhi Aayega" on the subject of this film and as a director on this corona pandemic. Dr. Pradeep Kumawat's film "Waqt Aisa Bhi Aayega" premiered on Zoom and YouTube. Photography Dr. Pradeep Kumawat and the drone views were taken by Nishya Kumawat. The editing of the film was done by Prateek Kumawat. This short film is of 07 minutes 23 seconds.

This film was especially dedicated to those people who left the world from here in the corona epidemic but now they will come back to earth as a new soul, a message that an attempt has been made to give through this film.

In this, with human sensibilities, what is essential in the time of Corona and what are the useless things that we should leave in the coming life, this film has also tried to underline it very effectively. When people saw the film on Zoom and YouTube, its content was highly appreciated.

70% of brain tumors are not cancerous

Udaipur: World Brain Tumor Day was first started in Germany in 2007. It is celebrated every year on June 8 to spread awareness about the brain across the world.

In the discussion organized on World Brain Tumor Day, Neurosurgeon of Paras JK Hospital, Dr. Ajit Singh, said that successful brain tumor treatment is entirely possible. 70% of brain tumors are not cancerous. There are mainly two types of brain tumors. First, those that are made inside the brain itself. Others are formed in some other organ but gradually reach the brain. Its main symptoms include reduced vision, hearing loss or reduced work of hands, feet, headaches, intensifying pain in the morning, vomiting, seizures, numbness in the face, etc. These early symptoms should be recognized and treated immediately.

Neurosurgeon Dr. Amitendu Shekhar said that till now, no comprehensive cause of brain tumor had been revealed. There is some genetic reason, like if someone in someone's family has had a brain tumor before, then they are more likely to get it. Radiation is also considered to be a reason for this, so X-ray, CT scan, etc. should not be done without a doctor's advice. Many tumors can be cured by medicine alone. Some are treated by making a small incision through the laparoscope. Very few operations are required.
